

More Experience:

San Jose State University, Graduate School of Business, 1981

Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, CA., 1979

Adjunct Professor. Responsibilities included teaching "Organization Behavior," "Managerial Psychology," "Men and Women in the Work Place" to graduate-level management students.

Stanford University, Stanford, CA. 1979 - 1980

Management Development Coordinator. Developed, coordinated and taught in a year-long experimental program for the University's mid-level managers.

National Training Labs, 1979-1980.

Trainer. Co-trainer and staff for training labs on Leadership and Organization Development. Assisted course leaders in the preparation, teaching and evaluation of courses.

Stanford University, Graduate School of Business, 1977-1979.

Group Facilitator for Prof. David Bradford in "Interpersonal Dynamics," a T-group course required of MBAs.

Professional Positions Continued

Stanford University, School of Education, 1977-1979.

Research Associate. Helped spearhead the Latin American Studies program and developed it as part of the Stanford Program for Intercultural Curriculum at the School of Education. Participated in workshops in service training, & curriculum development.

Stanford University, School of Education, 1977-1979

Teaching Fellow. Fellow for the Stanford Student Teaching Education Program (STEP). Duties included Director of Micro Teaching, Supervisor of student teachers, and course assistant for Social Studies Curriculum.